Bitter Bi-Partisan Opposition
Jeopardizes Neutrality
Program

By Edward B. Lockett

WASHINGTON, July 3—(INS)—Bitter bi-partisan opposition and weariness of legislators today jeopardized the Administration's neutrality program—and troubles galore plagued President Roosevelt's supporters seeking to revive his lapsed powers of control over the nation's currency.

House action writing a mandatory embargo on arms into the neutrality bill passed Friday made almost impossible Senate passage of a bill lifting the arms ban as demanded by the President and Secretary of State Hull. Several members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee handling neutrality legislation counseled dropping the whole thing for this session of Congress, but administration leaders said no and prepared to make a vigorous fight for their objectives.

The monetary legislation was circled with difficulties for the Democrats. In the first place Republicans stoutly asserted passage of the pending conference report continuing the President's power to devalue the dollar, the Treasury $2,000,000 currency stabilization fund and the foreign silver purchase program was useless. They declared that when a Republican-Conservative Democrat coalition filibustered the bill past midnight Friday the money powers expired, and hence there is nothing to "continue."

Democratic leaders, backed up by a written opinion of Attorney General Murphy, continued the powers simply "lapsed," and will be revived when and if the conference report is adopted. This latter will be no easy task, for Republicans were busily working today to muster votes against adoption of the report. They said they had hopes of defeating it.

CALLS ATTENTION TO
MANY HISTORIC SPOTS

Sec'y of Commerce, Richard
P. Brown, Says Thousands
Will Be Attracted to State

OUT TO BOOST STATE

HARRISBURG, July 3—Secretary of Commerce Richard P. Brown today called attention to a little known scenic and historic center in Pennsylvania which "if properly developed and advertised will draw increased tourist trade to our state."

"Few people realize," Brown said, "that right here in Pennsylvania we have an Indian reservation where full-blooded Indians, of the Seneca tribe, still live. The Complant Indian Reservations lies along the Allegheny River near the northern boundary of Pennsylvania in eastern Warren county, just outside the Allegheny National Forest."

Brown said that many of the Indians, members of the tribe, do not reside permanently on the reservation. The total number approximates 250, it was said.

"Many of them," Brown declared, "earn their living by traveling with Wild West shows, working in moving pictures, and in professional athletics. They return to the reservation to visit their families and to attend tribal ceremonies. They would probably be glad to live there permanently if they could find a means of earning a living."

"The reservation lies in the bottom land between the Allegheny River and the adjacent bluffs in country of great scenic beauty but with little land suitable for cultivation. Access to the reservation is very limited. There is an unimproved road over the hills leading from Warren in the west and another dirt road following the river down from Oneville just over the New York State line where a bridge crosses the river and gives access to state roads connecting with Bradford and Kane to the east and south."

"So little has the reservation been advertised," Brown added, "that few tourists know of its existence. In fact, since there is practically no identification on the site, the tourist would probably drive through without noticing it."

"Here is a great potential scenic and historical center to help draw tourist trade to Pennsylvania. These Indians form one of the most picturesque racial groups in the state. They have a rich heritage of tribal traditions and ceremonies and observe numerous festivals at various seasons of the year in full regalia. They are skilled in woodcraft and make various handicraft products such as baskets, beads, and bows and arrows."

"One of the outstanding landmarks of the reservation is the cemetery where is located a monument to Chief Cornplanter, erected by the Legislature in 1866. Here are buried braves of the tribe who were veterans of the Civil War, Spanish-American War and World War."

"Properly developed and advertised, the Cornplanter Reservation could be made a mecca for tourists to the mutual benefit of the Indians, whose present standards of living are far from satisfactory, to Warren county and the surrounding territory and Pennsylvania in general."

"A county planning commission, together with local officials, interested civic groups and state agencies, could do much to develop the recreational possibilities of this area, including its proper advertisement and access to traveled routes. With proper encouragement, the Indians could be stimulated to develop a picturesque community which would bring them a good financial return."

Connie Mack Is Seriously Ill at Home

PHILADELPHIA, July 3—(INS)—Brought home on a stretcher Connie Mack, septuagenarian pilot of the Philadelphia Athletics, today lay seriously ill at his residence in the Germantown section of the city.

The genial baseball manager was stricken in Boston last week with a recurrent attack of gall bladder trouble which nearly cost him his life in 1937. Upon his arrival here early Sunday, Connie was carried through a train window on a stretcher and whisked to his home by ambulance.

He looked gaunt and semi-conscious then, but late last night his son, Roy Mack, vice president of the A's, reported that his father's condition showed "marked improvement."

"We think that in a couple of days he'll be up and around again and his old self," said Roy. "He just has to take it easy for a while."

Roy blamed the recurrence of the bladder malady on the double shelling the New York Yankees handed the A's last Wednesday and the excitement of listening that night to the Louis-Galento fight. On the bench in the Athletics' dugout, Connie sat helpless while the Yanks hammered out 13 home runs and hit for 56 bases.

The dean of organized baseball, now in his 77th year, has been ill with increasing frequency in recent years. He suffered a general infection, coupled with a heart attack, following a training trip to Mexico in 1937, and later the same year he was stricken with the bladder ailment.

"Outside The Budget"

Washington, July 1.
THE President's proposal, sprung upon a weary Congress a week ago, to spend and lend four billions more of public money, "outside the budget," may or may not go through. At the moment, the economic monstrosity of the program seems to have been recognized, despite the effort to disguise it behind such hollow and mendacious phrases as "Government investment" and "self-liquidating projects."

HOWEVER, it appears likely the plan will serve one useful purpose neither foreseen nor desired by Mr. Roosevelt or the little group of advisers who sold him the idea, chief among whom is said to be young Mr. David Cushman Coyle. It promises to result in the assembling for the first time of the real figures about Government expenditures, loans, losses and debt, heretofore hidden by the devious methods of New Deal bookkeeping. It will also call attention to the fact that an extraordinary number of governmental agencies have been lending and spending money with no check, no report and no public accounting.

LAST Wednesday, the Senate adopted a resolution offered by Senator Byrd, of Virginia, which, when complied with, for the first time will make clear the Government's actual financial situation. Even to a public numbed by the repetition of huge deficit and debt figures it may be a shocking revelation. It may be shocking to Administration fiscal officials as well because such is the multiplicity and confusion of the spending-lending agencies that it has been impossible for anyone to get reliable figures.

Two Brothers at Croydon
Enlist in U. S. Service

Two brothers from Croydon are now in the service of the United States and both are graduates of the Bensalem Township high school.

Joseph O. Devine, 18, Fourth avenue and China Lane, Croydon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Devine, graduated from the Bensalem Township high school on June 7th and a few days later he enlisted in the United States Navy. He left Tuesday for Newport, R. I., training school where he will study ship radio and telephone for four years.

Devine was active in sports at Bensalem and was a member of the Croydon Boys Club and St. Thomas Aquinas Church.

Charles J., 3rd, brother of Joseph, also graduated at Bensalem Township high school in 1938. On November 7, 1938, he enlisted in the Marines and is aboard the U. S. S. Phoenix, which sailed April 7th, with the fleet for San Francisco.

Both boys were eager to serve their country and lost little time after completing their high school education, before entering the service.

TWO PHILADELPHIANS
DROWN IN NESHAMINY

Young Man of 19 and Lad of Six Years Resided in Same Neighborhood

DRAG FOR ONE BODY

A double tragedy of the week-end was the result of picnic parties, two drownings occurring in the Neshaminy Creek at Hulmeville Park.

The two victims, one a young man of 19 years, and the second a lad of six years, lost their lives last evening. The first drowned while swimming in the creek at about five o'clock, and after a long search sometime later for the child, who was missed by his mother during resuscitation work on the young man, the body of the little boy was also found on the bed of the creek.

The victims, who reside in the same neighborhood in Philadelphia, are:

Robert Pastore, 19, of 2225 W. Sargent street, Philadelphia, son of Dominick Pastore.

Anthony Trifiro, 6, son of Sebastiano and Josephine Trifiro, of 2769 N. Judson street, Philadelphia.

Pastore, one of a family of nine children, and the sole support of the family, drowned while swimming at the park at about five o'clock. Search was made for his body by several divers, and after recovery in 20 minutes' time, members of Bucks County Rescue Squad started work of resuscitation, but to no avail.

While efforts were being made to revive Pastore, the Trifiro boy was missed by his mother, and a lengthy search about the park area ensued. After some time had passed, and the boy could not be located, it was deemed advisable to search the waters of the creek. Dragging followed, and the body was located by Edwin Keen, Hulmeville.

The two bodies were removed to the funeral home of Charles Haefner, Hulmeville, with funeral arrangements being made for Robert Pastore. The body of the Trifiro child will be removed to Philadelphia today.

Plan Funeral Service
For Mrs. S. W. Shelly

Funeral service for Mrs. Susanna W. Shelly, one of Doylestown's oldest residents, is being arranged, death having occurred on Friday, at her home, 435 Maple avenue, Doylestown.

She was the daughter of the late Henry D. and Elizabeth L. Wismer, and was born near Gardenville, in Plumstead township, in 1852. In 1878 she became the bride of Tobias F. Shelly.

For the first three years of her married life they resided in Philadelphia. For the next 15 years she and her husband lived on the Thomas Shelly homestead in Upper Buckingham. Later they resided in Doylestown.

Mr. Shelly died eight and one-half years ago, a few years after they celebrated their golden wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Shelly, a member of Salem Reformed Church, Doylestown, is survived by one daughter, Elizabeth, wife of Winfield O. Weisel, and two grandchildren, Donald and Jean, all of Doylestown.

FIREWORKS IN EVENING

Hon. William F. Livengood,

Evening Program

Route To Fireworks Display

The most direct route to the Pine street field, Bristol, where there will be supervised display of fireworks on the evening of July 4th, will be on Beaver street to either Second or Third avenues. Both Second and Third avenues lead directly to the field and will be posted with signs and members of Safety Patrol will be on hand to guide traffic.

Plans have been completed for Bristol's big celebration of Independence Day, tomorrow, when it is expected that thousands will join in the two programs planned for Bristol and vicinity as a means of impressing not only the youth of this community but those of more mature years as well, with the value of the freedom and opportunities which is afforded by this great land—AMERICA. The first, tomorrow morning, will take the form of a flag presentation and flag raising at the Bristol post office building, Beaver and Prospect streets. The second program will be in the evening, when there will be a patriotic address, band concert and fireworks display at the Pine street ball field.

A grand stand is being erected on the Pine street field, lights are being strung and arrangements made to handle one of the largest crowds ever to have assembled in Bristol.

Tomorrow morning at 10.30 in front of the Bristol post office there will be group singing of patriotic selections with Percy G. Ford in charge. The invocation will be by the Rev. George E. Boswell, rector of St. James Church, and band selections by St. Francis Industrial School Band.

One of the features of the flag raising program will be the reading of the Declaration of Independence as published in the Courier by a group of organizations to stimulate patriotism.

An American flag will be presented to the post office department and will be accepted on behalf of that department by Joseph P. Duffy, postmaster. The flag will be raised by a representative of Bracken Post, American Legion, and by a representative of Joseph A. Schumacher Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The speaker on this occasion will be John Leslie Kilcoyne, Esq., and the benediction will be by the Rev. Albert M. Glass, assistant rector of St. Mark's Church.

As the flag is drawn to the top of the staff hundreds of smaller flags will fall to the ground.

The public is invited to attend this affair and the committee urges residents of not only Bristol but the entire surrounding community to be present.

In the evening at the Pine street baseball field there will be a band concert from seven until nine o'clock by the Metropolitan Band of Burlington.

MEANING OF PATRIOTISM

Tomorrow will be the Fourth of July, the birthday of the American Nation, the day set apart for stimulation of national pride and patriotic devotion.

Considerable effort is being made here this year to give a proper observance to the day. Tomorrow morning a flag will be presented and raised at the Bristol post office. In the evening there is to be a band concert and fireworks display. Appropriate addresses are to be made in which patriotism will be stressed and the fundamentals of Americanism pronounced.

There is no use blinking the fact that many men and women, the world over, have grown distrustful of patriotic emotionalism. The recrudescence of nationalism in the last thirty years has been the fruitful source of fears and jealousies which menace the world.

Here, as in the face of all the difficult and complex problems of present-day life, there is need for sober and patient thinking. We can never hope to escape from deep-seated human instincts. Rather, we must learn to interpret them, to apply them to larger issues, to harness them to greater ends. We can never afford to ignore the conflicting needs, desires, hopes and purposes of mankind. We must learn rather to compound them, to discover the secret of mutual adjustment, of the "balance of forces" through which Nature herself maintains her equilibrium.

The totalitarian state undertakes to attain stability through uniformity, through the suppression of everything which conflicts with the national will. The result, if it could be achieved, would be stagnation within, and irrepressible conflict without.

The radical social philosophies are open to the same fundamental objection. They would compel the whole world into one pattern—an attempt as hopeless as that of Caesar to subdue the tide. There can simply be no thoroughfare in that direction.

Every man has a right to his pride in his work, in his triumphs and achievements. Nothing short of this will keep him up to his best. So every nation has a right to its history, to the glory of its past, to the hope of its future. Every race has a right to its culture, its art and literature, its race soul.

This does not mean that one is right and all the rest are wrong. It does mean that life is bigger than the point of view of any man or race of men, and that only through mutual give-and-take can its highest destiny be achieved.

This is equally true in the field of economic and industrial interests. The need of the world today is that we shall be big enough to work together, to subordinate our particular interests to the welfare of the whole. The patriot is one who through his very pride in his country seeks to enlarge her contribution to the common tasks of civilization.

Grade and high schools here and you are making dead and foreign languages and mathematics elective. Why not let the little dears use their own judgment about going to school?

If Chamberlain wants to talk some of the go-kings out of the Russians, why doesn't he slip then the real Linburgh low-down on the state of their air service?

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol Dec. 6, 1877. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

The following items are culled from the Bucks County Gazette, issue of December 6, 1877.

John G. Spencer is the veteran postmaster of Bucks County. He has been postmaster at Oxford Valley for about 30 years.

Thomas Eastburn, the enterprising publisher of the Langhorne "Beacon," contemplates putting steam power in his office and running his presses by steam.

On last Saturday in Philadelphia the trial of a suit against the Pennsylvania Railroad by the widow and orphans of John W. White, was concluded. In April, 1876, Mr. White was killed at Penn Valley station, being run over while crossing the track by the New York Express. The jury gave a verdict in favor of the widow and orphans for $5,000.

The foreman of New York Division "C," Pennsylvania Railroad, gave a complimentary supper to supervisor J. B. Wright, and his friends, at the Closson House, Bristol, on Thanksgiving evening. 57 persons being present. L. McMakin, freight agent at Kensington, presided.

Agent S. P. C. A. Comly, in reply to a suggestion in last week's issue, says he was absent on business up in the county, on Thanksgiving Day, and he did not know there was to be a piqueen shoot within his bailiwick. He says he has repeatedly asked to be informed when one of these shooting matches was to come off, and he doesn't know whether in this instance his request has been merely forgotten or whether the omission is intended as a slight.

That there is quite an army of unemployed persons in the country at present, is apparent by the fact that there are about 20 applicants for the vacant clerkship at the Farmers National Bank.

Wanted—A new public hall, a good system of drainage, the houses properly numbered, women in the school board, less intemperance, fewer tramps, and work for everybody!

By the way, if home is woman's only sphere, our schools and mills are taking her out of it to an extent that is alarming.

During the recent freshet in the James river in Virginia, a house floated down the stream, and running into the schooner "Jesse W. Knight" of which Captain Maurice B. Lawrence, of Bristol, has command, tore away all the head-ropes of the vessel, and caused the loss of her anchors and most of her lines.

LANHORN—At Chillion Reeder's sale of personal property, on Tuesday, nine cows averaged about $40, and other things sold at correspondingly low prices.

Eight teachers of the borough and township met at the public school house last Saturday, and organized a teachers' institute, to meet once in two weeks. Music, industrial drawing, with preliminary business for a definite winter's work, occupied the day.

POINT PLEASANT—Last Sunday afternoon the Sunday School connected with the Baptist Church closed for the winter months. The school was addressed by the superintendent and others. . . . The nine scholars holding the highest number of red tickets, each received a small Bible.

The first meeting in December being the stated time for the election of officers, for the year commencing January 1st, the Army Post on Tuesday night elected the following named comrades. The positions corresponding with the field and staff of a regimental organization, rank in the following order: Commander, Richard H. Morris; senior vice-commander, Allen L. Garwood; junior vice-commander, Lewis McMakin; surgeon, Dr. William T. Potts; officer of the day, Eugene Highland; adjutant, J. Wesley Wright; quartermaster, Thomas B. Harkins; officer of the guard, Eli T. West; chaplain, David H. Stackhouse; sergeant-major, James Paxson; quartermaster sergeant, John Ryan.

The post now numbers over 60 members, and will undoubtedly reach 100 very shortly. . . .

NEW HOPE—The canal will soon afford fine skating. The dam which was built at the aqueduct has raised the water.

A large Corliss engine has been placed in the paper mill of Messrs. McDowell & Son, Lambertville.

able data. It is incredible but true that no one in the Government today has the complete picture; no one, including the President and the Treasury officials, knows the full facts.

THE Byrd resolution at least will show it possible to present all the facts. Lack of them today by both legislative and executive branch is the best proof of the charge that Federal finances are out of control. When the President proposes a new spending-lending program to operate "outside" the budget he does not say—and perhaps does not know—that there are now, and have been for six years, at least thirty lending-spending agencies operating "outside the budget" concerning which it has been found impossible to get complete figures. Certainly, the public has not realized that these agencies have already mortgaged the Government to the extent of about eight billion dollars and have authority to increase this by eight billion more.

OF this there has been no real accounting and no appraisal, as the transactions do not function through the budget. That there have been very large losses is as much beyond question as that these losses must be added to the direct public debt. So that when the Treasury asserts that the debt is forty-three or forty-four billions, the Treasury does not really know what the debt is. Nor does anyone else. What we do know is that it is very much higher by reason of the unknown losses of these "outside-the-budget" operations. The Byrd resolution requires the Treasury to prepare and transmit to Congress a complete financial statement of these "outside-the-budget" agencies. It insists upon details of assets and liabilities; statement of revenues and expenditures; of operating costs and methods of accounting; of loans in default; of the notes, bonds, stocks, debentures and other obligations held, etc., etc.

IT will be the first time these facts have been gathered or made available. It will be the first time the whole picture has been shown. When the complete compilation is made the surprise may be general. Everybody, including the Administration spokesmen, will know more. At any rate, it is difficult to think that action on the President's latest proposal will be taken until the information called for by the Senate has been furnished. Not the least interesting feature of the resolution is the illuminating list of these "outside the budget" money-handling agencies.

NOT many knew all of them. Here they are:

Reconstruction Finance Corporation.
Commodity Credit Corporation.

INSTALL SUN-DIAL

SEASIDE, Ore.—(INS)—Bathers at Seaside can now tell time without the risk of wearing a wristwatch in the surf. Obliging beach city officials painted a huge properly oriented sundial, 19-feet wide, on the boardwalk. Bathers stand in the center and see the hour of the day by their shadows.

U. S. INCOME PICTURE

LONDON.—(INS)—Although the United States is the "richest country in the world," 10 per cent of American families earn less than $350 a year, according to the annual report to the International Labor Conference, issued by J. "THERE'S ALWAYS TOMORROW"

SYNOPSIS

On her 25th birthday, Antoinette Goddard, a lovely San Francisco debutante, awakens with a feeling of great happiness. The cause of it was her fiancé, Brock Milbank, scion of the prominent west coast Milbanks. Toni felt flattered that the eligible Brock loved her when he could have had the pick of Society's debutantes. Jessica Payne, an unscrupulous blond, made no secret of his attraction for her. Even though Brock did not encourage Jessica, Toni was jealous of her. At the breakfast table, the news that her father had gone bankrupt did not affect Toni deeply. "What was money compared with love?" she thought. "Besides, when she and Brock were married they could help mother and dad." Toni had a luncheon date with Brock. He had not telephoned so she wondered if he knew of their changed financial status. Waiting for him in a hotel lobby, Toni is touched when one of her friends greets her with: "I'm frightfully sorry, Toni!" Toni thought her friend's solicitude had been for the loss of her father's fortune, but she learns the real reason when she buys a newspaper and a glaring headline reads: "Brock Milbank and Jessica Payne Married This Morning!" In a daze, Toni leaves the hotel and hails a taxi.

"Here we are, miss," said the taxi driver, drawing up along the famous Embarcadero. "Here's Fisherman's Wharf."

Here she had come often, with Brock Milbank. Giggling like two children, they had consumed endless rosy shrimps from the shell at the quaint open-air stands. This Old World place had intrigued them, and they had often stolen from parties to visit the water front and chat with the quaint fisherfolk in woolen tams and baggy trousers and long rubber boots smelling overpoweringly of the day's catch.

Mechanically, Toni paid the driver and, as in a bad dream, wandered by the water's edge.

If she could only hide forever! Board one of those weatherbeaten windjammers, or preferably a great freighter set for foreign ports, far, far from San Francisco! Never to return!

Or, better still, slip into the cold water, down into eternal oblivion!

Even now they were bandying her name, discussing her in the clubs and smart meeting-places from here to Santa Barbara, and back again! There was contempt in people's pity for a girl who had been jilted. A psychological, cruel twist in people's minds that dug out reasons for the breaking of engagements. The woman got the blame. It was her fault. She couldn't hold her man!

Seating herself on a bench near the water, Toni stared with dim eyes over the busy harbor. A night for everyone in the world but Toni Goddard! Gulls swooped and waited about her, like banshees moaning the utter desolation of frustration and lost love.

In a panorama, the whole course of Brock's courtship of her passed before her mind. She had taken his love so for granted. Trusted him completely.

Now, this horrible ending! Brock and Jessica! It was too fantastic. It was a bad dream. She, Toni Goddard, couldn't have had this happen to her.

The woman had followed him to Santa Barbara. Last night inveigled him out on a party. Got him drinking. Deliberately, and knowing his weakness, planned his befuddle-ment. Like so many men of the rich, leisured set, Brock was apt to take too much. Jessica, the unscrupulous, had traded on it.

But, in the printed report, there was no hint of an all-night revelry preceding the marriage.

"The most beautiful bride of the season."

"Brock wore a smile that looked as if it would never come off."

These were knife-thrusts in the wound!

Over her heart, her pride, they had stepped to their happiness!

pipe, his work of mending completed.

"Beautiful day, miss," he observed politely.

She thought: "Of all remarks, surely there was never one more ironic!"

Didn't the very sunshine mock her as she sat there, her world about her ears?

"I don't find it beautiful," she said shortly, hardly conscious that she spoke her thought aloud.

"Ah, but you'll get over it, miss." His clear old eyes that had looked on far horizons for a lifetime had gulls swooped and waited about Toni, like banshees moaning the utter desolation of lost love.

They would make their home in San Francisco! She would be compelled to meet them! So-called friends would take malicious pleasure in the situation. Some might pity. Others sneer at the girl who couldn't hold her man. Tribute went to the strong. Jessica, the bride, would be feted everywhere.

Helpless tears ran down her cheeks, so that the harbor waters blurred, and an old fisherman who was mending his net near by seemed like a phantom.

Time passed. She didn't move. She was numb, robbed of volition. What did one do when the savor of life had gone forever? Make the gestures? Carry on? The old saws about pride helping one were stupid and futile!

What was pride in comparison to love? What did one do when love failed one? Hide one's head? Crawl into a dark corner, like some wounded animal?

But one couldn't hide the story. It would be bandied from lip to lip. The wedding announcement made, the gossip writers would seize on the jilting. Printed comment would be made. Her family was too prominent, as was Brock's, to let this morsel slip. In later editions of the papers, tonight, tomorrow morning, the columnists would cast their innuendoes. Worse than that, perhaps, offer their sympathy!

Presently she was no longer alone on the bench. The baggy-troused old fisherman had come to smoke his odds, enough, a look of understanding in them as he turned them on her, kindly, quietly. "Life's like that net of mine. It gets torn in places. But you mend it, and put out to sea again. And all kinds of things, the good and the bad, come up in the catch."

She thought: "He saw me crying." And tears were very near the surface. She stared straight ahead at the endless procession of tugs and river boats, freighters, and swift ferries that headed for their goal.

Where was she heading?—she asked herself.

She was adrift!

"When my old missus died three years ago come Christmas, it was like my life had come to an end." He had removed his pipe, and seemed to be talking to himself. "But the boats went out just the same in the early morning, and me with them—and the dawns were as beautiful over Tamalpais—and there's healing in working!"

Healing in working! Like a beacon of hope, those three words of promise sank into her soul.

Life was a mending. The broken heart, like the torn net, could be reinforced and strengthened. A new dawn would await her, if she bravely faced it.

"In New York!" decided Toni. "She would go to New York."

There's healing in working!

The thought gave Toni hope. She decides to go to New York and start anew.

CHAPTER VI

Bright lights of Broadway. Jostling crowds everywhere. Noise. Traffic. Newsboys yelling the morning papers at eight o'clock in the evening. Street hawkers. Beggars. The rush hour for the theatre.

Toni Goddard in the milling crowd about the Astor Hotel. Tired from a long day of tramping the agencies. A search for work that didn't lead to anything. Thousands of girls in the city wearing out shoe leather similarly. She had been in New York almost three weeks, and the end of every day was blank disappointment. How much longer would her money hold out?—she wondered.

But grim determination, not hopelessness, was in the last face that was thinner than it had been in San Francisco. Come what may, she wouldn't go back.

She would find her place, or die trying. Adversity was building a new character in Toni. A quitter? A burden on her already burdened parents? Never! She'd scrub floors sooner than admit defeat.

But so many illusions had been discarded. The importance of a university degree in a workaday world was among the first. Then her year for writing. She had haunted newspaper offices. They wouldn't even give her a try-out.

There were not enough jobs for the experienced reporters, let alone hours in the waiting rooms of the theatrical agencies.

Hadn't she had good parts in plays put on by the college dramatic society? And wasn't she willing to begin with small bits, and work her way up?

The agents laughed at her naïveté, her greenness. One gave her a voice hearing, and appeared somewhat impressed. "If the field weren't so crowded, we might land you as a blues singer," he told her as he took her name and address—and that ended it.

At the end of her second week in New York, Toni moved to a cheaper hotel, bought an electric plate, and started light housekeeping.

But she didn't let her parents know of her change of address. Her mail could still be sent there. She could call for it. Keep her chin up. That was important.

Extraordinary that a big city could be so frightfully lonely! Here on teeming Broadway, she was grateful to exchange a few words with old Bridget, who had a tiny first-floor flat on the corner of Forty-seventh Street. When buying oranges from Bridget on more than one occasion, the sympathetic woman had drawn from Toni her continued disappointment in trying to find work.

To-night it was windy, and a sudden gust caught Bridget's stall, scattering fruits on the sidewalk. Toni swooped down on them, gathered them and returned them to the old vendor.

"Lissen, honey, there's a try-out at the New Gallie Casino at ten tomorrow morning. You'd make a swell showgirl. You go on over and tell 'em you've had experience," advised Bridget.

"But I don't know anybody to ask for." The place in question was an enormous café and music-hall on Broadway that was crowded nightly.

"Twas little Cassie Doyle as lives around the corner told me they're putting on a new revue. She's in the chorus. Ask for Cassie. Be there early and say a friend sent you. Cassie'll see you. She's a good-natured kid," grinned Bridget.

MASSEUSE, licensed, well built. Apply Kilmoon's Gymnasium.

"Well built, but not licensed," giggled Toni to herself. Here was something more promising.

GIRLS—beautiful, refined types, for photographic modeling; experience unessential.

But it was a wild-goose chase, and humiliating too. For the picker of beauty curlys told her that she was neither young enough nor pretty enough, in his opinion. Looking in her mirror as she left the place, she realized she did look rather haggard, for she had slept badly the night before, and worry didn't improve one's appearance anyway.

Despite this snub, and now more careful of her make-up, she sat for hours in the waiting rooms of the theatrical agencies.

Declaration of Independence

IN CONGRESS JULY 4, 1776

THE UNANIMOUS DECLARATION OF THE THIRTEEN UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

WHEN, in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.—We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.—That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed.—That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shewn, that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute Despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such Government, and to provide new Guards for their future security.—Such has been the patient sufferance of these Colonies; and such is now the necessity which constrains them to alter their former Systems of Government. The history of the present King of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute Tyranny over these States. To prove this, let Facts be submitted to a candid world.—He has refused his Assent to Laws, the most wholesome and necessary for the public good.—He has forbidden his Governors to pass Laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless suspended in their operation till his Assent should be obtained; and when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them.—He has refused to pass other Laws for the accommodation of large districts of people, unless those people would relinquish the right of Representation in the Legislature, a right inestimable to them and formidable to tyrants only.—He has called together legislative bodies at places unusual, uncomfortable, and distant from the depository of their public Records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures.—He has dissolved Representative Houses repeatedly, for opposing with manly firmness his invasions on the rights of the people.—He has refused for a long time, after such dissolutions, to cause others to be elected;—whereby the Legislative powers, incapable of Annihilation, have returned to the People at large for their exercise; the State remaining in the meantime exposed to all the dangers of invasion from without and convulsions within.—He has endeavored to prevent the population of these States; for that purpose obstructing the Laws for Naturalization of Foreigners; refusing to pass others to encourage their migrations hither, and raising the conditions of new Appropriations of Lands.—He has obstructed the Administration of Justice, by refusing his Assent to Laws, for establishing Judiciary powers.—He has made Judges dependent on his Will alone, for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their salaries.—He has erected a multitude of New Offices, and sent hither swarms of Officers to harass our people, and eat out their substance.—He has kept among us, in times of peace, Standing Armies without the Consent of our Legislatures.—He has affected to render the Military independent of and superior to Civil power.—He has combined with others to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our constitution, and unacknowledged by our Laws; giving his Assent to their Acts of pretended Legislation:—For quartering large bodies of armed troops among us:—For protecting them, by a mock Trial, from punishment for any Murders which they should commit on the Inhabitants of these States:—For cutting off our Trade with all parts of the world:—For imposing Taxes on us without our Consent:—For depriving us in many cases of the benefits of Trial by Jury:—For transporting us beyond Seas to be tried for pretended offences:—For abolishing the free System of English Laws in a neighboring Province, establishing therein an Arbitrary government, and enlarging its Boundaries so as to render it at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule into these Colonies:—For taking away our Charters, abolishing our most valuable Laws, and altering fundamentally the Forms of our Governments:—For suspending our own Legislatures, and declaring themselves invested with power to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever:—He has abdicated Government here, by declaring us out of his Protection and waging War against us.—He has plundered our seas, ravaged our Coasts, burnt our towns, and destroyed the Lives of our people.—He is at this time transporting large Armies of foreign Mercenaries to complete the works of death, desolation and tyranny, already begun with circumstances of Cruelty & perfidy scarcely paralleled in the most barbarous age, and totally unworthy the Head of a civilized nation.—He has constrained our fellow-citizens taken Captive on the high Seas to bear Arms against their Country, to become the executioners of their friends and Brethren, or to fall themselves by their Hands.—He has excited domestic insurrections amongst us and has endeavored to bring on the inhabitants of our frontiers, the merciless Indian Savages, whose known rule of warfare, is an undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexes and conditions. In every stage of these Oppressions we have Petitioned for Redress in the most humble terms: Our repeated Petitions have been answered only by repeated injury. A Prince, whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a Tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free people. Nor have we been wanting in attentions to our British brethren. We have warned them from time to time of attempts by their legislature to extend an unwarrantable jurisdiction over us. We have reminded them of the circumstances of our emigration and settlement here. We have appealed to their native justice and magnanimity, and we have conjured them by the ties of our common kindred to disavow these usurpations, which would inevitably interrupt our connections and correspondence. They too have been deaf to the voice of justice and of consanguinity. We must, therefore, acquiesce in the necessity, which denounces our Separation, and hold them, as we hold the rest of mankind, Enemies in War; in Peace, Friends.—

We, therefore, the Representatives of the united States of America, in General Congress, Assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the name, and by Authority of the good People of these Colonies, solemnly publish and declare, That these United Colonies are, and of Right ought to be, FREE AND INDEPENDENT STATES; that they are Absolved from all Allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connection between them and the State of Great Britain, is and ought to be totally dissolved; and that as free and Independent States, they have full Power to levy War, conclude Peace, contract Alliances, establish Commerce, and to do all other Acts and Things which Independent States may of right do.—And for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our Lives, our Fortunes and our sacred Honor.

HARRISBURG, July 3—Political observers attached more significance to the Hershey meeting of Gov. Arthur H. James, National GOP Chairman John Hamilton and Republican State Chairman James F. Torrance than the participants admitted. . . . None of the three would comment officially on the conference, but it was understood Hamilton was seeking to sound out 1940 sentiment in Pennsylvania.

Hamilton, a frequent visitor in the Keystone state of recent months, indicated he was greatly pleased with the way things were "shaping up" for the GOP 1940 presidential drive. . . . Governor James, oft mentioned as a Republican presidential nominee, and Torrance assured Hamilton of their utmost co-operation.

There was a touch of humor connected with the Hershey conference and all three of the participants appreciated it. . . . seeking to evade Harrisburg newspapermen who might attach undue importance to the conference, Governor James and Torrance decided to meet Hamilton in Hershey rather than at the executive mansion.

... to the surprise of all three, they ran smack into a convention of approximately 90 newspapermen at Hershey.

Age before beauty became a by-word with the newly-created Commerce Department as Secretary Richard P. Brown revealed that bathing beauty publicity as a means of attracting tourists to Pennsylvania was ruled out in favor of historic shrines and battlefields. . . . The State will expend $400,000 the next two years to invite visitors, but Brown said it wouldn't go for gaudy photographs of sun-tanned play girls. . . . "We want to feature on historic shrines, battlefields, recreational facilities and parks and forests," Brown said.

Signing of the much-debated Pierson "No work, no dole" bill by Governor James was termed by administration spokesmen as a means of "reducing the tax load Pennsylvania people are now carrying without handicapping to a single deserving person." . . . Under provisions of the law, able-bodied persons receiving relief must work for it. . . . The Pierson bill provides opportunity for relief beneficiaries to work for the support they are receiving, on penalty of being dropped from the relief rolls, and gives to communities opportunity to get something substantial in the way of public works for the money expended," it was said.

Governor James spent the busiest week since his inauguration as a flood of bills passed by the 1939 session were slogged on his desk for action. . . . Carrying out his intention of allowing no bill to become law without his signature, the Chief Executive worked manly to clean up more than 600 measures. . . . almost 100 were vetoed.

ON THE SCREENS

BRISTOL THEATRE

With Helen Twelvetrees, Buck Jones and Donald O'Connor in the starring roles, the new comedy-drama, "Unmarried," opened last night at the Bristol Theatre. Unusually human are definitely the words for this picture, for it makes no claims to pretentiousness, and in a workmanlike manner goes about telling a clean cut and amusing story which eventually centers in a typical American home. An exciting, thrill-tinged drama of human emotion, Columbia's "Outside These Walls" opened yesterday at the Bristol Theatre to give its three featured players acting opportunities unlike anything they have previously enjoyed.

GRAND THEATRE

"The Wages of Sin," the Thousand Dollar Prize Picture which opens at the Grand Theatre today, is dynamite! A powerful drama that minces neither words nor facts, it caused the audience which viewed it to gasp with horror and amazement as they viewed a slice of life that has too long been kept hidden from the public.

A starkly realistic drama of a girl who becomes an unwilling member of "the oldest profession in the world," this picture preaches a powerful sermon and reaches a tremendous climax with one of the most sensational murder scenes in the screen's history.

It's dynamite, all right, and it will blow you out of your seat and out of your possibly complacent view of life. It calls a spade a spade—and then shows you a close-up of that same spade. As a result you will not soon forget it.

RITZ THEATRE

Wanted—by 100 sheriffs, the United States cavalry, and 500 senoritas! It's the Cisco Kid, lovable outlaw of the Old Southwest, the gayest gun-fighter of them all! He railed the Ritz Theatre yesterday in "The Return of the Cisco Kid" and looted an enthusiastic audience of all its laughs and thrills in the exciting time the 20th Century-

Fox film flitted across the screen.

Warner Baxter dons again the sombrero and silver-mounted guns of the famous O. Henry desperado he so thrillingly brought to life "In Old Arizona" and the result is as hilarious and thrill-packed as that first triumph. In support of the star, Lynn Bari, Cesar Romero, Henry Hull, Kane Richmond, C. Henry Gordon and Robert Barrat are featured in the cast.

Queen Elizabeth Sets Hat Styles With These

Recent visit of Queen Elizabeth to the United States not only thrilled Americans but also had a marked influence on feminine styles. Although she loves veils and often wears them in her native England, she rejected them and wore similar creations to these. The queen's own modiste designed the leghorn bonnet with a sweeping ostrich plume of hyacinth blue. The toque is a small hat with regal plumes mounted on a plateau of dotted horse-hair. The other hat with the false crown is of black belting on a stitched white fabric over the crown and falls down the back snood-fashion.

LANDRETH NINE WINS TWICE OVER THE PAST WEEK-END

Win Victory at Trenton, Defeating the R. W. Albright Club by Score of 6 to 3

DEFEAT PHILA. POLICE

Local Nine Victorious Over Phila. Team by Score of 8 to 7

The Landreth nine turned in two notable victories over the week-end. Saturday at Dunn Field, Trenton, they defeated R. W. Albright club 6-3 and yesterday afternoon at Landreth Ball Park they nosed out the Phila. Police team in a hotly contested game and uphill fight, 8-7. In the two games the Farmers went on a batting rampage, making a total of 31 hits, sixteen yesterday and fifteen Saturday.

Saturday's game at Trenton was close for four innings the home team holding a two-one edge till the fourth when the Landreth team went out in front. Ray Costello's triple scoring Griggs, who had singled and Costello scoring later on the squeeze play with Rockhill. After this the visitors were never stopped. Hits by Heisler, Rockhill and Liberatore counted another in the sixth. The following inning two more were scored on hits by Rossi, Griggs and Heisler, a force out and a wild throw by Nemcheck. Heisler not only pitched well for Landreth but helped his own cause along with three hits. Liberatore accepted ten chances in the field. Griggs, Costello and Heisler were the leading hitters.

Yesterday afternoon at Landreth Park what was probably the largest crowd of the season turned out and saw the Farmers gain the decision over the Phila. Police after nine hectic and exciting innings.

The Police started the scoring in the second inning. Curry hit a pitched ball, Kenin doubled and T. Edwards singled to score two runs. Landreth topped this in their half of the inning, scoring four runs. Lodge and Broderick made hits, Lodge counted when Chase threw Rossi's safe bunt by first base. Broderick scored as Griggs grounded to T. Edwards. After Dougherty flied out, Carey counted Rossi with a hit to center. Rockhill and Liberatore made infield hits, loading the bases when Curry threw wild to first. Carey scored.

The visitors scored five in their third inning. Cresse and B. Edwards made hits. Brogan sacrificed Gilroy grounded to Rossi. Carey passed Curry, loading the bases. B. Kilroy hit, counting two runs. Kenin tripled over Rockhill's head for two more. T. Edwards counted Kenin with the fifth. After this inning Al Carey pulled himself together and finished the game in fine style fanning eleven and limiting the visitors to two hits for the balance of the game.

Meanwhile Landreth picked up a run in their half of the third, Rossi driving home the run after Lodge singled and advanced to second when Broderick grounded out, and added what proved to be the deciding run in the fifth. Hits by Lodge and Broderick, a fielder's choice and Dougherty's two base hit tied the score and Carey broke the tie with a hit to center. Heavner replaced Chase on the mound for the visitors at the start of the sixth and held the home team to two hits in the final three innings.

The all around playing of Kenin at first for the visitors was the best seen here this season.

Lodge and Liberatore paced the home team at bat each making three hits. The home team played a good fielding game as usual, Rossi, Dougherty and Griggs making several sensational stops and throws.

Know Your Canning For Good Products

By Miss Edna Stephany

(Home Economics Representative)
When plump pods hang on the vines and garden rows yield more than the family can eat, then it's vegetable canning time.

Canning time always brings up troublesome questions. There is the recollection of a product last season that did not turn out as you expected, or perhaps the correct method for putting up a vegetable that's never been tried.

The answers to some of these questions have been based on studies conducted by the Bureau of Home Economics in Washington.

Q. What kind of a canner is needed for putting up green peas and beans?

A. Peas and beans, like practically all vegetables except tomatoes, are non-acid foods. These can be canned more safely if processed in a steam pressure canner where a temperature of 240 to 250 degrees Fahrenheit can be secured in order to kill the dangerous bacteria which may be present. A hot water bath, oven canner, or a steam cooker without pressure never gets above 212 degrees Fahrenheit or the boiling point of water. For this reason these methods of processing are not so safe as with the steam pressure cooker.

Q. Does it make any difference what size of container is used for canning vegetables?

A. Pint or quart glass jars and number 2 or 3 tin cans are the recommended sizes for most vegetables. Pint jars and number 2 cans are best for tender green peas and cream-style corn. Tender, green peas become soft and mushy from the long cooking process required for larger containers. If corn is canned in quart jars or number 3 cans, it should be put up in the whole grain style since heat penetrates the cream-style corn very slowly.

Q. Is it advisable to can corn or red-colored vegetables in tin cans?

Behind the Scenes in HOLLYWOOD

By HARRISON CARROLL

Copyright, 1939

King Features Syndicate, Inc.

HOLLYWOOD — Errol Flynn and Lili Damita can now give the gossips a loud razzberry. The other day they celebrated the fourth anniversary of the "marriage that couldn't last."

It was a big week in the life of the Irish star. His 29th birthday has just passed and he and Lili gave a dinner party followed by a moonlight cruise on the Sirocco.

To top it off, Flynn's family arrived by plane. Not only his father, mother and sister, as originally reported, but also his two cousins.

Flynn's way of referring to his sister is very quaint. Although she is a grown girl and preparing to study medicine, Errol always speaks of her as "my small sister."

If you can believe Tom Brown, the night clubs won't be seeing so much of him from now on.

"After my separation, I was on the town for a while," he tells me, "but I'm all right now."

Tom says that he and Natalie Draper tried to have dates, Hollywood fashion, after their divorce, but it didn't work out. "We don't see each other now," he says.

The plot of "Lady Jane" calls for Shirley Temple to be kidnapped. There was plenty of discussion about these scenes, but they finally were okayed because "Lady Jane" is a period picture.

Try and pin David Niven down on the status of his romance with Jacqueline Dyer, who's gone back to Scotland! He just smiles and temporizes. I asked him if she is coming back to Hollywood.

"Well, I'm going home for three months myself as soon as I finish 'Raffles,'" he answered.

Guess David doesn't intend to be a hermit in the meanwhile. He had Grace Poggi to dinner at the Hollywood Tropics.

You would have thought Greer Garson was Garbo, the way everybody stared at her when she visited the "Balalaika" set at M-G-M.

Must have given her quite a laugh.

When this actress, a sensation in "Goodbye Mr. Chips," was out here before for M-G-M, nobody knew her. During the whole miserable year, she was on the lot only seven times. Her visit to the "Balalaika" troupe was the first time she had even seen a picture in production on an M-G-M sound stage.

Other kids have a three-month vacation from classes, but not Freddie Bartholomew. He's planning to take a summer course that will enable him to graduate from high school in June, 1940. There is a little compensation, though. The boy star will be studying under a tutor and his schoolroom will be a trailer that will be moved about to various parts of southern California.

Paramount will delete a scene in "Are Husbands Necessary?" where Fred MacMurray was supposed to slap Madeleine Carroll. Fred squawked and you can't blame him. He cuffed Carole Lombard in "True Confession." Madeleine Carroll in "Cafe Society" and Irene Dunne in "Invitation to Happiness."

He's afraid that, if he keeps on the fans will think he really is a wife beater.

Marc Lawrence, now finishing an M-G-M role, and Stella Adler have set their wedding date for early fall. . . . If Joy Hodges accepts Jesse Lasky's invitation to fly back to Des Moines for the opening of "Career," it will make 17,000 miles she has traveled by air in the last six weeks. . . .

Cesar Romero and Binnie Barnes have been twining it at Marcel's. . . . ditto Virginia Grey and Dick Arlen at the Cafe Lamaze, Jean Parker and Katharine Aldridge doing the rumba to Phil Ohman's music at Victor Hugo's. . . . The rumors that Joan Valerie eloped to Mexico are very funny. The man with her was her 19-year-old brother, Chris Valkis. He's a violinist and very good. Won a musical scholarship at the University of South Dakota last year and probably will continue his studies at U. C. L. A. next semester. . . .

Very strange to see Gene Autry wearing an army uniform at Republic. His new picture, "In Old Monterey," is the first time in four years he hasn't been in cowboy garb. Gene even affects it off screen. Goes to night clubs wearing a 10-gallon hat and with his trousers tucked into boots. . . .

Book title that strikes my fancy is Johnny Miles' "Fun in Bedlam." . . . For a collection of Hollywood anecdotes.

A. Yes, practically all vegetables may be canned in tin cans. There are different types of finishes which are best adapted for certain vegetables, such as the C-enamel tins for corn, succotash, lima and red kidney beans, and E-enamel for beets, pimientos, pumpkin, squash, and berries. Pickled beets should be canned in glass because of their acidity.

London, July 3—The British Government has received reliable information that "certain measures" of a military character are being carried out in Danzig, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain told the House of Commons today. Wheeler lost no time but rushed to the woman's rescue and got her ashore. She had removed her glasses and also her shoes before jumping into the water.

After getting Miss Bonfranchi out of the water Wheeler called to J. G.

Schaffer, Bath Road, who was passing in a car. The woman was put into the machine and taken to the police station and then to the hospital.

Upon being questioned Miss Bonfranchi led police to believe that domestic trouble was the reason for her attempt at drowning.

She was employed in Steel's mill.

AIDING TIGERS' DRIVE

"I'D LIKE AN ADVERTISEMENT, PLEASE!"

Suppose you had to buy each advertisement you see in the newspapers now! Suppose you had to pay to learn where and what and how about food, furniture, clothes!

You'd be mighty sure to read each advertisement thoroughly—digest every bit of important information it offered!

It's still a good plan to absorb all the facts from advertisements—even though they come to you free, along with your news! For here manufacturers tell you how to make a dollar do more work . . . how to spend wisely . . . how to go farther on less. Through the printed word, they proffer their finest wares. It's much to your advantage to listen as they speak.
